The Barnes-Hosmer Wedding Last Evening—A Brilliant Affair—Many Other Happy Couples Joined in Matrimony.

A very brilliant wedding was that of Miss Clara Barnes, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Henry Barnes of this city, and Sidney Hosmer, son of Dr. Hosmer of New York, which occurred last evening. The wedding ceremony took place at the Church of the Redeemer at about 6 o'clock, where Rev. Dr. Phillips officiated, performing the Episcopal service. The church was splendidly decorated in elegant flowers, palms and other tropical plants. The first ten front pews were shut off with white satin ribbons for the exclusive use of the immediate friends of the bride and groom. The party entered the church in the following order: First the six ushers, followed by the six bridesmaids, then the maid of honor, and then the bride with her father. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man.

The bridesmaids wore bluish pink organdy over pink silk with ribbon trimmings. In the hair they wore two narrow bands of pink velvet caught on either side by a single rose of pink with delicate green leaves. They were: Miss Daisy Bartlett and Miss Grace Porter of this city, Miss Alice Tufts of Charlestown, Miss Bessie Adams of New York, Miss Eliza McMillan of Springfield, Mass., and Miss Sophie Palmer of Middle Haddam.

The maid of honor was Miss Marion Hosmer, a sister of the groom, who was attired in pale green organdy over green silk, the bands for the hair being of green velvet with pink roses. The bridesmaids and the maid of honor carried large bouquets of pink roses, Miss Hosmer's being tied with green ribbon, the others with pink ribbon.

The ushers were: Dr. H. C. Porter, Yale '92, of New Britain; Rev. Harts Dingley, Amherst '90, of Boston, Mass.; Bayard Barnes, Yale '95 '96, a brother of the bride; H. J. Brightman, Columbia '91 L. S., of New York city; William H. Hudson, Columbia '91, also of New York, and Edward B. Bliss of Hartford.

The best man was Albert J. Dingley, a son of ex-Governor Dingley of Maine. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home on West Chapel street. Here also the decorations were superb and the lawn was brilliantly illuminated with arc lights and 150 Japanese lanterns. Supper was served from the piazza, which was extended by a tent, marked of New York catering. Robinson's orchestra, stationed on the piazza, discoursed selections during the reception, and after 9 o'clock dancing was in order. The bride and groom received congratulations in the drawing room at the right of the entrance, standing beneath a dome of asparagus and white roses, the room being decorated in white and green. The other reception room, together with the hall and staircase being splendidly trimmed in various floral decorations, this being done by Champion, as was also the decoration at the church.

The bride's wedding dress was of heavy ivory satin, the skirt plain and tight fitting about the hips, gradually broadening till it reaches the feet, when it develops into a train three yards in length. The body is tight fitting, with the blouse effect at the front. The sleeves, full at the top, are finished below the elbow with heavy satin folds. English in cut, with a stack of white satin and point lace, a broad collar of the same lace falls over the shoulders and the bust. A tulle veil, caught at the front by a diamond brooch, is fastened to the front by a diamond brooch, with a few orange blossoms at one side, was worn. Her bouquet was of orchids and lilies of the valley.

The going away frock was of frog green crepon, made over pale yellow silk, its green gleaming through the skirt and again in the body, which is of the crepon, the yoke of the pale yellow with ecru lace trimmings. The bottom of the yoke is finished with a plain, loose band of green satin ribbon, splashed with goldenrod and bunches of wild flowers in blue, pink and yellow.

A large hat, combined of pale yellow taw and black net, a row of black lilies around the base of the low crown, with a pink rose showing here and there beneath the brim, was worn with this frock.

Mrs. Barnes wore a gown of lilac satin, a brocade in heliotrope and yellow, her skirt and body both heavily trimmed with duchesse lace. A full Marie Antoinette collar of lilac satin and duchesse formed the principal trimming of the body, which was made with the small blouse effect at the front. The gown worn by Mrs. Hosmer was of heliotrope satin with trimmings of a lace.

The trousseau, which is very beautiful, included two imported dinner gowns, exquisite in design and workmanship. One is of Dresden silk, the other of pale pink, blue, green and yellow irregularly worn in a background of blue-white. The body, low at the neck, is trimmed with fluted files of white Brussels net. Over the left sleeves from the shoulders are rips and ends of pink and white satin upon brocade in tiny pink roses. The other dinner frock is also of Dresden silk, the pattern worn in a background of pale yellow. This is cut at the neck with a yoke of plaided pink and yellow chiton laid over the lace.

A charming theater gown is of black crepon, the waist made with a yoke of pink satin ecru lace and openwork, black jet insertion. A blouse at the top falling from the bottom of the lace to the waist line is of the pink satin and ecru lace, a broad fold of the black crepon down the center, the lace either side over the satin studded with black jets.

A dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Barnes for the bridal party Miss Barnes presented each of the bridesmaids with a circular brooch, the design being a path of pink enamel leaves set with rubies, and to the maid of honor she presented the same design with the leaves of green enamel. The groom's suit to the ushers and best man were of scarlet pins of the same shape and design as the brooches.

The wedding cake boxes were heart-shaped and of heavy satin finished in pastebord, the cover being decorated in silver with the monogram of the bride and groom.

the bride and groom done in raised silver in the center.

The presents received were elegant and costly, among them being a diamond crescent, a diamond bracelet, and diamond brooches to the bride. There were also a chest of silverware, a silver table service, china and glass ware, banquet lamps, pictures in water colors, clock sets, loving cups, invalid furniture and candelabras.

Among Mr. Hosmer's friends who were present were: Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William M. Hughes of Morristown, Professor H. P. Wright of Yale college, Judge and Mrs. Henry E. Taintor of Hartford, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer of New York, Dr. and Mrs. Emerson of New York, Hon. and Mrs. Nelson Dingley of Lewiston, Me., Captain Watkins, steamship City of Paris, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fallon of Summit, N. J.

Among Mr. and Mrs. Barnes' friends present were: Mr. and Mrs. John W. Ailing, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Atwater, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Barnes of Fair Haven, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Davis of Brooklyn, Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Jewell of Hartford, Colonel and Mrs. Wooster of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Van Dusen of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Parmelee, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. C. Barry Peets, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Bartlett, the Misses Bartlett, Mrs. Hobart B. Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Leete, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Osborn, Professor and Mrs. George J. Brush, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Butler, Professor William H. Bayne, Professor and Mrs. George B. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin R. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. J. Sizer and Mr. and Mrs. Willett Hemmingsway of Fair Haven, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Tyler, Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Trowbridge, Professor and Mrs. A. E. Verrill, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Webb, Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Winchell, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Hemmingsway, Hon. and Mrs. George B. Holcomb, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hall, Governor and Mrs. Charles R. Ives, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Ring and Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Bosch of Jersey City.

A very thoughtful and kind characteristic of the bride was that in the excitement of the festivities Miss Barnes thought to have the flowers used in the decoration of the church distributed among the poor and the sick of the Church of the Redeemer, and had cake and ice cream served to the Oak street mission, at which 250 children, of whom she had been a teacher, partook and enjoyed a good time. Miss Barnes had been a great helper in the Welcome hall mission work and has always taken a great interest in the welfare of the poor children of that district.
